any hymns—Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills—in the Mills home, did you?" asked Simpson. "Gloria in Excelsis Deo," or anything like that. A. No.

Mrs. Opie said she had heard no talk that James Mills knew the real called often at the Mills home.

Payne a Lively Witness

Phil Payne, managing editor of the tabloid newspaper which turned the fingerprint card over to the prosecutor, was a lively witness.

Q. Are you managing editor of the New York Mirror? A. Yes.

Q. How long have you been an editor of the Mirror? A. About a year and a half.

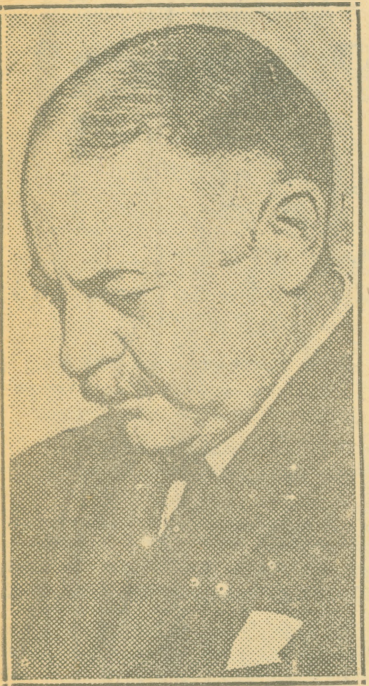

Q. Before that you held the same position on the Daily News? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know Edward H. Schwartz, a fingerprint expert? A. Yes.

Q. Did he give you this card supposed to contain Willie Stevens' fingerprints? A. Yes.

Q. Did you give him anything of financial value? A. No, nothing of financial value.

Q. Look at that card—is it the same now as it was when you first saw it? A. As far as I can see, it is.

Mr. McCarter opened his cross-examination by asking when Payne had last seen Schwartz before the meeting in the St. Francis Hotel in Newark, where Schwartz turned over the card.

Payne replied, two or three times in the preceding week or ten days.

Q. By appointment? A. Yes.

Q. Who made the appointment? A. One of my men did that.

Q. How did you communicate? A. By telephone.

Q. Why didn't you meet in his office? A. Better ask him, I don't know.

Met to Talk About Card

Q. So you had three or four meetings. What was the purpose of them? A. To talk about this card.

Q. Did you see it each time? A. No.

Q. When did you first meet? A. Some time after June 15.

Q. Do you remember where it was that the card was given you? A. Actually I received it in a taxicab.

Q. But you had been at the St. Francis Hotel. A. Yes.

Q. How did you first learn that

Schwartz had the card? A. I heard he had been working on the case.

Q. What did you give him that was not financial? A. I told Schwartz—

Before he could finish, Mr. McCarter broke him off. Simpson demanded that the witness be permitted to complete his answer. The court so ruled.

A. I told Schwartz if he would give us this card he was doing a service to the state of New Jersey. That's the only consideration he got.

Q. Was anybody with you on the occasion when you got the card? A. Yes, Mr. Farley, of my office.

Q. Did you go from your office or from North Hudson county to Newark? A. From my office in New York.

Not a Fingerprint Expert

Q. You're not a fingerprint expert, are you? A. No sir.

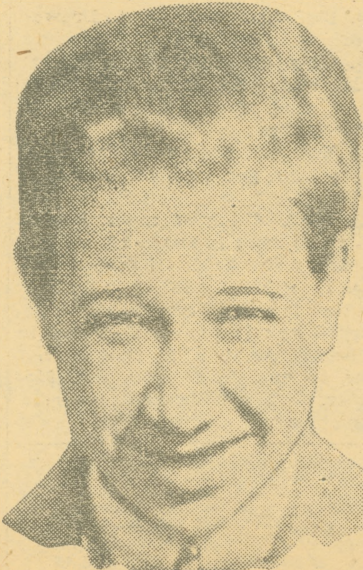

Q. After you got possession of that card did you suggest sending it to Newark to have Schwartz see it again? A. No.

Payne said that Joseph A. Faurot, Frederick Drewen, fingerprint expert of the Jersey City police department, and Herbert Mayer, a Mirror reporter, came to the office of the Mirror in New York from Middletown, N. Y.

He had sent Mayer to Middletown to see Faurot and to get a story in connection with the card he said. He said he expected that the official record of Willie Stevens' fingerprint would be taken to Middletown, but that he did not

His Court Debut

DANNY MILLS, son of the murdered woman, made his first appearance in court yesterday, and was the object of considerable interest and sympathy.

Champion Foodless Hiker Proud Father of Big Boy

George Hasler Johnston, who set a new world record and won a $1,000 prize offered by Bernarr Macfadden when he walked 600 miles without food in twenty days last June, has something else to be proud about today.

He's the happy father of a baby boy, who, from all appearances, has inherited his dad's iron constitution, and is eager to be off on some record-shattering hikes himself.

G. H. Johnston

The new hiker, Kenneth Johnston, was born on Armistice Day, and weighs 8 1/4 pounds, and is doing nicely, as is his mother.

Kenneth's daddy surprised the medical profession and the whole world by doing something many persons claimed was impossible when he set out from Chicago on June 1 for a foodless tramp of 600 miles to prove that the human body was not materially weakened by abstinence from food for a certain period, and, in fact, could be benefited thereby.

Johnston more than proved the point he started out to establish. He reached the end of his jaunt at Bedford, Pa., June 20, just 37 1/2 pounds lighter than when he started, but otherwise none the worse for the grind. In fact, mentally he felt more alert than at the start.

AMHERST PLANS ACTION ON RESIGNATION OF OLDS

AMHERST, MASS., Nov. 13.—Amherst College is considering today what action to take on the resignation of Dr. George Daniels Olds, who was appointed president in 1924.

Stating that he "thought it would be wise" to relinquish his duties as president, Dr. Olds told the annual meeting of the alumni council that he had asked last month to be relieved of the office.

Plan for Funeral Of Joe Cannon As Nation Mourns

DANVILLE, ILL., Nov. 13.—While the nation today mourns the death of Joseph (Uncle Joe) Gurney Cannon, funeral preparations are being made for the man who during forty-four years helped Congress and won the respect of friends and foes alike.

After the weakening of his heart muscles because of his age, Uncle Joe passed away yesterday at his home here, to which he came after his retirement from public life in 1922, as he said, to die. He was 90. The end was peaceful. His declining health had warned friends that death was but a short distance away.

Hundreds of messages of condolence were sent his relatives by President Coolidge, members of Congress and political leaders throughout the world.

Cold Halts Flight Of Los Angeles

LAKEHURST, N. J., Nov. 13.—Because the cold which threatened to freeze the water recovery system and cause a loss in helium if a landing were attempted today, the Los Angeles was tied to its hangar yesterday.

C. E. Rosendahl

Under command of Charles E. Rosendahl the dirigible was scheduled to fly to Norfolk. However, Rosendahl turned the ship back at Washington. The flight will be postponed until November 17, by which time it is expected that an anti-freezing solution will have been installed.

NAMED TRADE ENVOY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Robert C. Cockburn of Watervliet, N. Y., has been named assistant trade commissioner at Calcutta, India.

U. S. Has Plenty of Coal For Winter, Report Shows

CHICAGO, Nov. 13 (By U. P.).—The nation's coal bin is adequately filled for the winter.

The Middle Westerner who has begun stoking his furnace against the first freezing temperatures and snow finds prices slightly higher, but in the East the fuel supply is abundant and prices are reasonable.

These are the major facts as gleaned by the United Press in a country-wide survey of the American coal situation.

Mid-West Doubtful

Due mainly to the British coal stoppage, foreign exports have been heavy but domestic operators have been able to meet the increased demand without seriously affecting the American consumer.

Reports from New York say there is enough coal there to last six months at $14.75 a ton. This price has not deviated since spring.

But in Chicago and other middle-western cities, wholesalers and retailers are less optimistic. They say there is only enough coal to last two months and that in event of another cold wave shortly, a run on the companies would completely absorb the available supply.

GUARD POWER PLANTS

Although no attempts at violence have been reported, Sheriff-elect Underhill of White Plains, as a precautionary measure, has detailed thirty-two heavily armed members of the sheriff's emergency force to guard Westchester power plants, the outside men of which are one strike.
